President's Message

Dear Members:

At the outset, thank you to all who found me worthy as a successor to my friend, Sean Walsh. Thank you to all who have shared their messages of congratulations and good will. On behalf of all of our members, THANK YOU to Sean Walsh for a decade of service leading Queens Civic Congress since its incubation. Sean continues as President of the Queens Civic Congress Foundation and as President Emeritus. Thank you also to our installing officer and my Assembly Member, Barbara Clark, our Installation Keynote speaker, Cathy Nolan and for their words of support for Queens Civic Congress: Senator Frank Padavan, Assembly Member Rory Lancman and Council Member David Weprin.

I hope – with everyone's help – to maintain Queens Civic Congress' reputation as a dynamic and pro-active voice and influence in the life of our borough, its neighborhoods and our city. Our communities face many challenges; through our coalition, partnerships and advocacy efforts, Queens Civic Congress stands to make a difference.

Throughout my professional life, I worked for elected officials. Since leaving government, elected officials, institutions, labor and others have engaged my services. Where I get involved professionally, I disengage that from my civic (and, for that matter, my other community) involvement. Two clearcut examples: my non-participation in mayoral debates Queens Civic Congress sponsored in 2001 (I served on a candidate's government staff) and 2005 (A campaign later engaged me as a policy advisor, which was not unexpected). The Queens Civic Congress became an early opponent of the Congestion Tax, and our CIVIC 2030 platform reflected this position before I even knew a coalition of Congestion Tax opponents would approach me to become a policy advisor and later act as a spokesperson. Since that first contact, even before I agreed to the engagement, others— primarily Sean Walsh and our transportation chair, James Trent — took the lead on this for the Queens Civic Congress; Jim Trent, who delivered excellent testimony before the NYC Traffic Congestion Mitigation Commission late last month, remains our voice on this issue.

Our Zoning Enforcement Committee led by Joe Amoroso and new co-chair, Vice President Harbachan Singh, will follow Building activities with a keen eye and speak out where necessary as we prod this agency to more carefully scrutinize construction plans that skirt, if not violate, existing zoning and codes. New Vice President Kathy Masi, who chairs our renamed Historical Preservation and Landmarks committee (Paul Graziano who recently became president of the Historic Districts Council will remain on the committee), and Executive Vice President Patricia Dolan put together an excellent workshop (read more on page five). Pat continues to be a force on land use issues, speaking out on concessions reform, making sure our concerns get heard on the Yards text and working with communities on their zoning concerns. New Vice President Barbara Larkin testified at the City Council's Consumer Affairs Committee on the need to protect homeowners from wanton insurance cancellation. I testified against City Hall's plans to hike our water tax bill 18.5% mid-year before the Council's Finance and Environmental Protection Committees. The Officers and committee chairs of Queens Civic Congress represents a wealth of talent, expertise and knowledge and we rely on them to make our coalition serve our needs. We want to further use these talents and that of our members— that means you—so please let me know your interests so we can include more of you in our committee work. Happy Thanksgiving.

Sincerely,

Corey

Joint Statement of Queens Civic Congress and Queens Coalition for Parks & Green Spaces

New York City must work to preserve its historic natural areas; these historic settings must receive much the same treatment as historical landmarks. The destruction or loss of any natural areas negatively impacts the quality of life for the surrounding communities bordering these green spaces. It flies in the face of what City Hall advocates for parks and preservation in PlaNYC. Ridgewood Reservoir should be preserved as such and the monies (some $46 million) to destroy this green area's natural settings should be re-allocated to purchases to preserve other threatened historical natural areas which also include historical structures -- such as St. Savior's, the Klein Farm, Iris Hill and the former Cornell Farm. What we destroy today cannot be restored tomorrow.

City Hall needs to take a hard look and re-evaluate what needs to be done to preserve natural areas before they cease to exist. This includes re-thinking any plans that threaten natural parks and historic settings such as Ridgewood Reservoir, St. Savior's, the Klein Farm, Iris Hill and the former Cornell Farm.

G Train Still An Issue QCC Is Fighting

The Queens Civic Congress, together with such groups at the Tri-State Transportation Campaign and some Brooklyn groups, is still fighting with the MTA over its continued neglect of the hapless G train. A recent article in a local newspaper pointed that the infrequent service and overcrowded trains has a noticeable impact on property values in Williamsburg and Greenpoint. Real estate brokers were quoted that apartments closer to better served transit such as the L goes for more money than buildings nearer the G. Crain's New York Business did a story in September in which QCC's Transportation Chair James Trent was quoted. QCC still maintains that truncating the G at Court Square only serves to shunt potential Brooklyn residents who would shop at the major shopping center at Woodhaven and Queens Boulevards, to simply shop at Herald Square or other Manhattan stores instead.

QCC recommends that cars from the underused V service be given back to the G (from whence they were taken) to lengthen G trains from the current four cars back to the original 6 cars;; that the V be rerouted to 63rd Street; the F be restored to 53rd Street; and that the G be restored 7 days a week to its terminus at 71st Street - Continental Avenue.—Jim Trent (Creedmoor Civic)

QCC Files Protest Over Congestion Pricing

Queens Civic Congress showed up at the Queens hearing held on congestion pricing that was sponsored by the committee that was set up by the Mayor and State to investigate the public's support and the logistical and financial feasibility. James Trent, QCC's Transportation Chairman, spoke for the QCC at York College where the hearing was held on October 30. Queens Civic Congress identified other ways to generate income to support the expansion of mass transit and that the congestion "pricing" which we prefer to call congestion "taxing" enjoys no widespread support in Queens.

In fact, most spoke in opposition including Borough President Helen Marshall, Senator John Sabini, Assembly Members Cathy Nolan and Rory Lancman, and Council Members David Weprin and Leroy Comrie. —Jim Trent (Creedmoor)

Dorms for CUNY?

We need to evaluate the need for dormitories at Queens College. CUNY is supposed to be for disadvantaged city residents, and it is clear that dorms at CUNY institutions means that students who can afford to live in dorms will be accepted over students with similar credentials who cannot fill the dorms.

In addition to posing a burden for the local community, CUNY has a special mission, and dorms for wealthier students as well as out of state students would seem to be a betrayal of that mission. As Queens College approaches maximum capacity, and we expect a million new residents by 2030, Queens College President Muyskens needs to focus his attention on his core mission.—Dave Kulick (Flushing on the Hill)

Coastal Insurance Position Testimony

On October 30, VP Barbara Larkin Testified for QCC before the NYC Council Committee on Consumer Affairs to urge protections for homeowners from insurance companies' cancellations of Homeowners Policies for many residing in or near coastal communities. QCC supports Resolution No. 430-A which calls upon the NYS Legislature to pass legislation that would lower the percentage of homeowners insurance policies that a company may cancel or refuse to renew without the approval of the NYS Insurance Department.

Last year Allstate Insurance Company canceled or did not renew 28,000 homeowners' policies in NYC, Long Island and Westchester. Since this number represents less than 4% of Allstate's total policies in NYS, the company slips under the State Insurance Law threshold to notify the NYS Department of Insurance of its plans or take any steps to ensure that the company's rejection of this clientele is conducted in a manner that minimizes the disruption sure to result when so many homeowners abruptly find themselves having to obtain replacement coverage. Additionally, under current law, Allstate faces no requirement to demonstrate any kind of financial rationale for dropping these policyholders, many of whom have had coverage for decades, leaving them to find coverage elsewhere. S.2269, introduced by State Senator Klein, would require insurers to demonstrate potential risk or loss to justify cancellations or non-renewals before securing approval by the Department.

The QCC finds this legislation would protect consumers and ensure stability in the insurance market and supports its enactment. QCC has already discussed introducing a companion bill in the State Assembly, and Barbara has spoken to Assemblywoman Audrey Pheffer, Chair of Committee on Consumer Affairs, and she has confirmed she and her members are working on similar legislation. The New York City Council's message of support, as demonstrated through the passage of Resolution 430-A, would help this cause greatly.

More Green and No Hard Yards

In response to QCC's longstanding charges that widespread paving of yards is an environmental and aesthetic blight, the City Planning recently proposed a zoning text amendment that will limit paving. Also, in response QCC, the Department proposed to limit height of walls and walls and fences in R-1—R-5 residence districts.

In residence districts R-1 through R-5, property owners will be required to landscape front yards based on frontage ranging from 20% for narrow lots (less than 20' wide) to 50% or lots 60 feet or wider. Parking in R-1 and R-2 front yards will be banned. The new rule will reduce the increasingly frequent practice of paving over front yards in some residential neighborhoods.

The new zoning amendment also limits the height of fences to no more than four feet along frontages and six feet along the property lines that do not face the street line—another QCC platform demand.

And finally, the text amendment will protect corner lots from overdevelopment by requiring side lots of at least 20 feet and will also require a 30 foot open area behind every building segment (rowhouse) to ensure a useable rear yard for all homes. Under present rules, corner lots were defined to include all lots within 100 feet of a corner.

Another text amendment requires property owners to plant additional trees in the sidewalk strip adjacent to lots where new construction or substantial alterations occur.

"QCC welcomes these text amendments, which come after years of QCC's advocacy. QCC will continue to advocate for a ban on paving rear yards as well. While we would prefer an outright ban on fences and walls on properties in low-density neighborhoods, the text amendments will greatly benefit Queens neighborhoods," said former QCC president Sean Walsh. "We are especially pleased with the new requirements for yards on corner lots."

The public comment period for the amendments will close on November 15 and the new rules are expected to become effective by the end of the year. The proposed text amendments are available at www.nyc.gov/planning. Demands for the new rules are part of the QCC Platform 2030.

More on Park Concessions

QCC, joined by major advocacy groups for parks, testified at long delayed Council Parks Committee hearing in October.

QCC executive vice-president Pat Dolan called for reforms of current concession rules to require timely public review of major concessions including, marinas, parking lots, large scale restaurants, and other businesses in parks. QCC also encouraged the Council to consider allowing concession revenues to be devoted to maintenance and operations of the park generating the revenue. At the same hearing, QCC supported calls for greater public oversight of private businesses that manage parks.—Patricia Dolan (Kew Gardens Hills)
